BOLIVAR BULLETIN. An unnecessary lynching occurred at Columbia last week. Such recklessness in civilized communities

Notwithstanding the fact that the negro, Green Wells, was taken from the Colambia jail and hanged by a mob in broad open daylight, the coroner's jury rendered a verdict that he came to his death at the hands of unknown men, and the grand jury failed to find any indictments. There is no doubt that the negro richly deserved death, and, there is furthermore no doubt that death would have been his punishment at the hands of the law. While he deserved death, he was also entitled to the laws probest the law. While he deserved death, he was also entitled to the laws protection until the law could have accomplished his execution.
